Harry Goodwin of Eliot died on Friday of last week; and on Monday, October 2, 1964, he was buried in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery after services at the Buckminster Chapel, conducted by the Rev. Kwan Y. Lee. Just a month before, on September 2nd, Mr. Goodwin had attended funeral services here for his wife, Stella; and now, he, too, had succumbed to the cancer few knew he had. He was born in Dover in 1890 and moved to Eliot with his family about two years later when they moved to the home the Braden family own now. He grew up in Eliot and attended school here, then studied to be a mechanic. He joined the Army in World War I and was overseas from April 1918 to August of 1919 taking part in three major battles - those of the Argonne, the Pise-Aisne, and Saint Mihiel - and attained the rank of Corporal.

After his return, Goodwin worked at York. From 1925 to 1949 he ran the garage on Goodwin Road, now owned by his son-in-law and daughter, Dave and Eleanor Pearsall. He and his wife Stella lived in the home located across the road and just a little way up toward Kittery from his boyhood home. First he sold Chevrolets, then became the first tractor dealer in the area, selling "Best Tractors".

He sold the first area snowplow to York, and to the town of Eliot its first snowplow. Many in town remember that first plow - a huge wooden thing with a great wide wing on the right. His responsibility did not end with the sale. He kept the plows running through zero weather and the heaviest storms.

[Sometimes] it meant snowshoeing from Eliot to Portsmouth to get parts as they came in on the train. He would snowshoe through heavy unplowed snow and - repairs made and service restored - back to Eliot he would travel on his snowshoes over Beech Ridge Road. If it was Eliot's plow that broke down, he would put up a canvas to gain some shelter from the storm and work until the great plow could start off again.

Harry Goodwin loved to travel and made his first trips to Florida in the days when Model T's were the best way to cover rough roads. He took pictures everywhere he went, and collected pictures and cards of other places as well as many, many of Eliot. He shared these often with others, showing them at home and at the East Eliot Methodist Church, to which he belonged and supported in many ways over the years. He had hoped some day to write the story of his trips using the records of his wife to help him with the statistics but the warmth and color would have come from his own prodigious memory. Many had hoped he would find time to write of the history of the town using some of his many pictures as illustrations.

The STAR, Thursday, September 3, 1964;

Estella Maude Goodwin, wife of Harry N. Goodwin of Goodwin Rd., Eliot, died early Wednesday, morning at the Portsmouth Hospital following an illness of several months. Born in Malden, Mass. on January 8, 1890, daughter of John and Emily Brown Kramer, she moved to Kittery with her family while still very young. She attended the Kittery schools and worked in York before her marriage in November 1920.

All her married life was spent in the family home on Goodwin Road or at their home in Belle Isle on the outskirts of Orlando, Florida where she spent many happy hours growing flowers and fruit. She tried her hand at everything - cotton, pineapple, sugar cane as well as her twenty-two rose bushes and other everyday flowers. This last Easter there were three hundred and thirty-four blooms on her Easter Lilies and these she shared with others as she did all the abundance of her garden. She fed birds by the thousands, and her home was a Mecca for many friends from Maine and other parts of New England. She was a member of the East Eliot Methodist Church and of the Woman's Society and her contributions to the work of the church over the years has been countless. She worked, too, in the Conway Methodist Church which she attended for many years while in Florida. Even this past winter she spent hours preparing articles for sale at the Church's fairs. Tall and strong, her quiet dignity endeared her to all. She is survived by her husband, her daughter Eleanor M. Pearsall, three grandchildren, Bonnie, Nelson and Terry Pearsall, and two sisters, Mrs. Fred Leavitt of Eliot and Mrs. Helen Gardner of Rockland, Mass. Visiting hours at the J. Verne Funeral Home, Thursday and Friday at the caller's convenience. The Funeral will be on Saturday at 1:30 at the Buckminster Chapel, Portsmouth.

My Memories of Harry Goodwin by Alice Goodwin Sharp [1981]

Having spent my childhood years in Eliot, Maine, one of my vivid wintertime memories is of seeing the monstrous snowplow with its red "wing". We lived on the corner of Rt. 103 and Depot road at Ireland's Corner. In the quiet country air it could be heard quite some distance away.

Harry is my 2nd cousin, 1 generation removed. His grandfather, Nathaniel, and my great-grandfather, Daniel were brothers.

He was very interested in the family lineage and when I became interested in tracing my Goodwin line about 1960, he was very helpful and gave me information and pictures so that I could copy them.

During the Eliot Sesquicentennial in 1960, which celebrated the town's incorporation in 1810, Harry was a most interesting guide on the historical bus tour which I took with my children. He was very well informed about Eliot's early history. His daughter, Eleanor PEARSALL, is one of our members as is his brother, Ralph, and sister, Olive, widow of Edward J. BLAISDELL.

His parents had four children: Harry Nelson born 14 May 1890, died 2 Oct. 1964, Oscar Millard, b 3 Oct. 1894, died 7 Jan. 1979, Olive Etta b 25 Nov. 1897, lives in Eliot and winters in Orlando, Fla. and Ralph Briggs b 20 Jan. 1899, who lives in Peabody, Mass.

Millard GOODWIN, father of Harry, was the son of Nathaniel and Olive RUSSELL GOODWIN. There were 8 children, all born in Eliot. His brothers and sister were: Russell, Elisha, Nathaniel Jr., George Henry, Ellen Augusta, Alfred and Charles Edward. Millard was the last child in the family.
